AGAINTS OUR RETREAT IN VIETNAM

For some time now, there has been a powerful trend both in Congress and throughout the nation, advocating our continued withdrawal from Vietnam. The trend is strong enough that it is difficult to believe that the United States should continue to maintain a strong military presence in that country. However, this is not the case. The United States and its allies need to continue to support the South Vietnamese in their battle against the communists. The United States has a vital interest in seeing that the government of South Vietnam is able to survive and succeed in the face of the communist threat. The United States and its allies should not retreat from Vietnam.
